Disney Cruise Line Appoints Tom Wolber as Senior Vice President of Operations

Apr 18 16

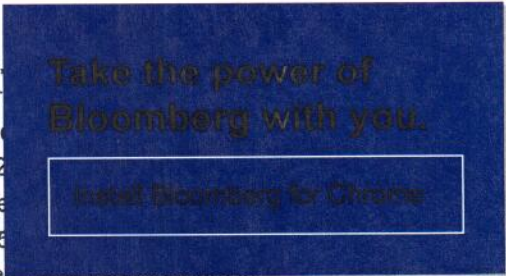

Disney Cruise Line appointed Tom Wolber as senior vice president of operations for the company. Wolber will join the company's Celebration-based cruise line division later 2016, after he helps with the transition for the new president of Euro Disney S.A.S. Wolber will oversee the recently announced expansion of the fleet, from four ships to six. Wolber replaces Anthony Connelly, who moved to the Imagineering division in January. Previously he worked in Disneyland Paris' management company as president. Wolber was senior vice president of operations at Disney Cruise Line from 2004 to 2013.

Disney Cruise Line Announces Two New Ships

Mar 5 16

The Walt Disney Company announced plans to build two additional cruise ships, the immersive family entertainment, enchanting storytelling and unparalleled service to deliver. The company has entered into a memorandum of agreement with the Meyer Group in Germany. The schedule calls for the new ships to be completed in 2021 and 2022, with approximately 135,000 gross tons - slightly larger than the newest Disney Cruise Line ships, the Disney Dream and Disney Fantasy - and each is currently planned to include about 1,250 staterooms. Design plans, ship names and itineraries are still in development, the Walt Disney Imagineering team is already dreaming up exciting new ways to create the world's most magical oceangoing adventures. Since first setting sail in 1998, Disney Cruise Line has provided a quintessential family cruise vacation experience that combines the magic of Disney with the thrill of exploring different parts of the world. Guests step aboard majestic and beautiful ocean liners to enjoy legendary Disney entertainment, exquisite dining, spacious and well-appointed staterooms and magnificent public spaces. The company also has been an industry leader in innovation and game-changing creativity. With the launch of the Disney Dream and Disney Fantasy in 2011 and 2012, the company introduced several firsts for the industry, including a water coaster at sea (AquaDuck) and virtual portholes in interior staterooms (Magical Portholes) that provide real-time views of the sea as well as sightings of animated Disney characters. Plans for the expansion of Disney Cruise Line come during a period of momentous growth and innovation for Disney properties around the globe.
