MODIFICATION REQUEST EXPLANATION:
 The Cerlic Automatic Sludge Blanket Monitor has the ability to give total suspended solid (TSS) measurements throughout a water column and allows real time data to be collected as the probe descends. All other probes on the market measure only the overall TSS within a body of water. This probe will provide immediate TSS profiles throughout each basin rather than rely on the current method which is operator visual inspections (via DOB pole) and then treatment by trial and error. The ability to address different levels of TSS thorough out the basin will allow MWWTP to efficiently and effectively apply treatment and avoid violations. This probe will also map TSS to depths within a given body of water and communicate in real time to the PLC controlling the SBR processes at MWWTP, there is no other probe on the US market with this feature.
