I agree with Greg and believe most of our neighbors do as well. Quality is more important. Industrial tourism focuses on quantity and corporate revenue.

I am writing to share my perspective on the current discussion regarding tourism in Juneau. The central issue involves choosing between high-volume, industrial tourism and a lower-volume, quality-focused experience.

I favor the latter approach. Supporting a higher quality experience will help maintain Juneau's unique character while ensuring the community continues to enjoy the economic benefits of the tourism industry.

This lower volume approach will also afford the CBJ a better opportunity to finance, manage and maintain the infrastructure (police, emergency services, street, park and trail maintenance) necessary to insure public safety while supporting this industry.

Best regards,
